

UNDERSTANDING

Publication of an article in the EJM

In the knowledge that articles published in the European Journal of Minority Studies (EJM) are protected by copyright, I transfer with the acceptance of my manuscript by one of the editors of the EJM and subsequent publication of my submitted manuscript the exclusive and unrestricted rights of usage, both temporal and in form and content and of use for all languages for the duration of the legal copyright protection period to the Berliner Wissenschafts-Verlag.

I assert that I alone am entitled to command the copyright on my article and have not as of yet passed any rights on that are in contradiction to this understanding. This applies also to drawings, templates or images provided by me, the copyright for these lie also with me.

I commit myself – independently from the copyright of any third party – to craft my article within the boundaries of academic integrity, particularly, I will display any words or thoughts of third parties in an appropriate way (ban of plagiarism). The publisher is entitled to take the issue off the market in case of a violation of these integrity lines.
